Elizabeth's volume Poems (1844) brought her great success, attracting the admiration of the writer Robert Browning. Their correspondence, courtship and marriage were carried out in secret, for fear of her father's disapproval.Â But unlike her siblings, she immersed herself in books as often as she could get away from the social rituals of her family.Â Portrait of Elizabeth Barrett Browning in 1859. She was educated at home and tutored by Daniel McSwiney with her oldest brother.[8] She began writing verses at the age of four.[9] During the Hope End period, she was an intensely studious, precocious child.[10] She claimed that at the age of six she was reading novels, at eight entranced by Pope's translations of Homer, studying Greek at ten.
