Treat your students to a delicious book tasting! Set the tables, pass around the main course, and let them indulge in different genres, authors and styles as they cook up a reading wishlist of their own. Very similar to the popular read-dating activity, book tasting gives students the opportunity to sample some juicy reads in a short period of time and come away with a wish list of titles. No more choruses of “I don’t have anything to read!” Your book tasting can be as simple or as fancy as you’d like. It can be set in your school’s media center, cafeteria, or in your classroom. The basic setup is this: Students enter a restaurant-like setting, Time, Taste and Furniture book. Read reviews from world’s largest community for readers. Many of the earliest books, particularly those dating back to the... See a Problem? We’d love your help. Let us know what’s wrong with this preview of Time, Taste and Furniture by John Gloag.
